Comments	Hi! Just came across your website and really enjoyed "meeting" you! My husband, Paul, and I are 60 and new to sailing. I recently retired from elementary teaching - Paul will never retire from all of the many things he's interested/involvement in - but we are making/taking time to sail and travel! This past winter we crewed on a cat going from Savannah to the Bahamas and the Keys and when that trip was over, we sailed with an Aussie to Cuba. Next week, we're crewing on a 38' Columbia for a 5 week trip from Hamilton (L. Ontario) up the St. Lawrence to Cape

Breton Island. We first became interested in sailing on a trip with my sister and her sailor-husband on their boat in Brazil and also on a trip to Trinidad with them. Then we followed up with some courses - thinking someday we might want to buy a boat...but so far, crewing has been a great start! We also have a non profit corporation (The Forerunner Project)aimed at helping/teaching others about "forerunners" - people who are motivated to build, create, innovate and/or reform - a

Comments this is a great site! my husband (age 61) and I (age 51) live on the beach in Dar, where we both work on public health projects. While here, i am living out a lifelong dream of being the captain of my own boat (1967 Westerly 28.) It is lovely for me to read about another woman captain, and hear about the process you both went through. I have bookmarked your site and plan to spend many more hours reading about your cruising on sea and land (since we too have considered an RV...) thanks for all the effort you have put into this wonderful website!!

Comments What a great testament to the fortitude that can be inspired in ones senior years. And the entire site is an absolutely superb account of your travels. Although I am several years away from "finding the courage" having a boat at the dock and a heart of an adventures spirit, your encouragement makes a dream seam all more realistic.

Comments I stumbled on your website while Googling McKinney Falls. We were there in April, on our first "retirement" journey. I was indexing some of our photos & needed to be sure where we were. You have done a wonderful job do #$$@%! your travels. I wish we could be as disciplined. Our sailing was all inland, most on a Rhodes 22. Now we have a 26' travel trailer & a pickup truck. I will check in to your website every now and then and see what you're up to. Meanwhile, there's plenty to spur us on!

Thank you for all your great work & willingness to share. Best wishes, Gary & Jen

Death and dying really opened my eyes to stop fearing what is inevitable, and start living life to it's fullest. I'm not saying that I'll start by jumping off that cliff into the water, but to start being more brave in my everyday life, like taking the boat out on the lake, and flying over to Europe to trace my history. Comments Just visited your site looking for advice on buying a bluewater boat. I'm 28, and have wanted to be a liveaboard since I was a child. March 1st I'm moving to northern California to do it, and I'm so scared I don't know what to do. But, if I can do this, then I'll have done the scariest thing I've ever faced. Then I know I'll be ready to be the kind of husband, father, person I choose to be, without being afraid of what I don't know, confident I can face my own fear and overcome it. Thanks for the site, and the advice on it. I'll be back for more ;-)

Knowing that we share a favourite place in Florida's St. Joseph's Peninsula Park, we checked out another of your favourite places - Point Douglas Marina and RV Park in Port Townsend, WA. What a fabulous spot. We could only get 2 nights in a 'dry' site but were on the water side and enjoyed the birds and boats. And the town was wonderful to wander through. Now we're in Portland, Oregon, at Roamers' Rest which we chose because of your rating. Have you thought of going into the business?

WOW! I came across your site "accidently" after seeing wild pansies in my yard. With lack of something to do this morning (mind you I'm not complaining, it's my day off!) I decided to look them up online. Doing an image search I came across some and it was on your site. Pretty aren't they. I started looking through a bit and reading your travels. All I could think was, wow, how fortunate these people are to explore the beauty and wonders of the US. Maybe one day I will be able to do something like that. If you don't mind I will be stopping back every so often to see how your journies are going. May you all have easy roads to travel, be safe and never forget for a moment or take for granted the beauty you see. Oh...and have FUN!!! God bless!!

		Comments	As you folks did earlier I am learning all I can so I can go cruising. I have spent a long career as a chiropractor. I love what I do. I have always had a deep desire to sail. I have begun over that last few years. I started by restoring a Neptune 16 and we now sail it in the midwest. I hope to graduate to a larger vessel soon. This winter I am taking a celestial navigation course through the local Power Squadron. I am also interested in being an even greater force for creative change in this world. Thus I am interested in your internet seminar. Thanks for all you offer. Regards, Gene A. Zdrazil M.A.,D.C.

		Comments	From all Marian has told me about you two and looking at your website, I wish we'd had more time to visit rather than just filling up her water containers! Hope you found some birds at Saratoga on the Oyster River and at Oyster Bay. I did get my bird book back from Marian yesterday. I'm planning on becoming a nomad myself soon, I'm just not sure I can give up my home, although most of the stuff can certainly be disposed of which I find so freeing. It was great to meet you

Comments Hi, Bill... Remember me? Another Pinehenge refugee. Nice to meet you, Pat. Now that I have found my way here, I will spend some time in the future scoping your web site. I teach literature and composition and ethics at a community college here and have decided to go to work on a PhD in Curriculum and Instruction to get a little more weight to throw around in pedagogical debates. This is after recovering from a lengthy illness that ended with me discovering I am gluten intolerant and have been malnourished most of my life as a result. Below are two of my poems. =) Peace and love, Lizard Imperatives I should write a poem. I should write a poem every day. I should write a poem every day because the world needs more art. The world needs more art every day when a president lies. Every day when children die in unwanted wars for a president's lies the world needs more art. When children of mothers die every day the world needs more art. When every day mothers and children kill and are killed die or are damaged

Comments Could I use the photo of a tree with the roots showing for a school assignment. I'm a student at the University of North Florida and for my illustration class I'm presenting a collage of different trees and roots. I wonder if you would mind if i use your picture. I won't use it for any commercial reason only to show during class to my professor and classmates

Comments Found a real affinity with your site. I especially enjoyed your Cruising section. I'm newly retired and waiting on my wife retiring from teaching so we too can go cruising. We are currently negotiating on a boat which we think will be ideal for cruising and your site has provided me with lots of things to think about and plan. The internet is a fascinating place especially with people like you around to fill it with interesting sites. I'm going to register for your seminar as I believe the global situation needs action urgently and I don't want my grandchildren to point a finger at me an my generation saying "you did nothing".

My wife and I read, with great interest your "C" website. We were saddened a bit when it came time to sell the boat and retreat to a life less..demending? Anyway, thank you for your writings. You have a similar way of looking at the world 9 and the unsustainability of the American thing) as we do. So often we feel alone. My wife, she has a name Elisabeth, and I are in our planningstage. We will retire early in 3 years and intend to sail our 41' Swan to Europe. (Elisabeth is from northern Germany.) We expect to be out 5 years or so. We just did the Baha ha ha this year. You may have seen our photo on Lectronic latitude (Oct 31) (We dressed as Fidel and Che at the kick off.) Anyway, thank you again for sharing so much with us. Best wishes always, Rod and Elisabeth

Comments You have a very nice web site. So much of what your site covers is the same as my interests. I'm looking at retirement in about 10 years and I'm dreaming about cruising when it arrives. (Though I'd like to start small soon, so I'll be ready.) This past October, I spent the whole day at the Annapolis SailBoat Show just dreaming about what could be. Your photos really make the site. I'm also interested in RVing, though not in something big. I like birds although I haven't done birding yet. My mother was from Nova Scotia and settled in the Boston area. Good luck with everything, including your latest venture. Your website got me to submit comments which I normally don't do.
